|--|---|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Contemporary Social Science Japan (Japan Foundation; $900,000) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Details: A major institutional grant to support social science research, education, and programming on domestic and foreign policy challenges facing contemporary Japan, primarily by supporting the establishment of a new “21st Century Japan Politics & Society Initiative” (21JPSI) within the EALC Department of Indiana University’s Hamilton Lugar School of Global and International Studies. The aim of 21JPSI, of which I serve as founding director, is to bolster at IU and to serve as a Midwestern hub for contemporary Japan-focused social scientific and policy-relevant research, teaching, and programming. The grant provided funds to support the establishment of IU’s first-ever speaker series on Japanese politics, society, and foreign relations; academic manuscript workshops to provide critical feedback to social scientists producing cutting-edge, policy-relevant research on contemporary Japan; and national conferences and international policy webinars on U.S.-Japan relations, inter alia. It also funds faculty research travel to Japan, facilitates the creation of new courses on contemporary Japan (four to date); and provides seed funding to support a new tenure-track assistant professor of contemporary Japan. • Next Generation Research Program (Korea Foundation; $65,000) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Project: “U.S.-Japan-Korea Relations and Taiwan” • Global Gateway Grant (Indiana University) | 2018-2023 2022-2023 2023 |
